cliticess there. Owing to the survey heige
made strong feeling exists against the perty,
but nothing serious resulted until a few days since, when the party were waited upon in their secluded camp by a number of armed men, who ordered them off their land. The order was not obeyed, but Duffield immedisely debuded the guards at sight and oosetinued work. This morning news reached here that the beligerate cliticess had surrounded the earny, armed with needle guas, and determined to dispose of the surveyors.
Gen. Duffield was persistent in refusing to sewed to the demands made upon him and the conflict is hourly expected. Owing to the remotemen of the seene and a desire apon the part of residents to suppress the facts, little information can be gained, yet enough is known to create alarm for the safety of Duffield's party, as the heligerests have the advantage in numbers, and otherwise seen

A PRIVATE TELEGRAPH.

John Mills, the hero of this sketch, John Mills, the here of this sketch, was a rain-ord engineer, and ind bees for a long time in the company's employ. When the new engine '59' was completed and placed on the road. John was given charge of it, and he evenced a natural pride in his preferment. At one of the stations there was a young girl, a triegraph operator, between whom and the engineer there had sprung up a warm attachment, and whenever '59' came along. Kate generally managed to be at the door and exchanged signals with her lower. One day the train was detained at the station, and the locomotive dotached and sent up the road to do some additional work, and Kate went along for a ride. As she listened to the sharp, shrill notes of the whistle, fit occurred to her that she englithesh with the sharp, shrill notes of the whistle, fit occurred to her that she might teach John to sound her name in the Morso telegraphic character, so that she could be shriked. The plan worked to a charm, and far and none day, as the operator stepped upon the work of the whistle shriked. Re-te, mith the whistle shriked. Re-te, mith the whistle shriked re-te, mith the order that the work had shriked re-te, mith the order that the correlation of the signal and work and the work had been discovered, they were obliged to discontinue. In the meantime Kate ind, by means of the telegraph, made the acqualitatione of a young lady in a distant city, but whom she had never seen, and to her she made known the fact that the sceret had been discovered, they were obliged to discontinue. It was simply to arrange a means of telegraphic communication between the approaching the industry which was done by laying the poker upon the tender-brake so as to touch the wire lapping the proposed plan, and in the meantime had found an abandoned wire which was founded to use for completing the circuit, which was done by laying day came soon after, and John fortunately having a holiday, he and Kate went

It was singular how absent-minded and inattentive the operator was on the day that the great scientific enterprise was finished. Wo wonder shalloss in the superintendent to follow was disturbed. Would the new line work? Would ber little battery be strong enough for such a great circuit? Would John be able to cleek it? The people began to assamble for the train. Two weeks passed, and then there suddenly arrived at the station late one evening a special with the directors' cars attached. The honorable subsets were hungry—they always are—and would pause on their journey and take a cup of tea and a bit of supper. The honorables and their wives and children completely filled the station, and the place put on a gala saperd. the place put on a gala aspect. As for Kate, she demonrely sat he her den, book in hand, and over its unread pages admired the gay party in the wattage-room.

Suddenly, with furious rattle, her electric bell sprang into nolsy life. Every spark of color left her face, and her book fell with a dusty slam to the floor. What was it? What did it mean? Who rang it? With afrightened face she burst from the office and burst through the astonished people and out upon the snow-covered platform. There stood the directors' train on the track of the oncoming train.

"The conductor! Where is he? Oh, sir! Start! Start! Got to the siding! The express is coming!"
With a cry she snatched a lantern from a brakeman's hand, and in a flash was gone. They saw her light pliching and daceing through the darkness, and they were lost fa wonder and amezement. "The girl is crazy! No train is due now. There can be no danger. She must be"—Alt that horrible whistle. Such a wild shriok on a winter's night! The men sprang to the train and tho women and children fled in frantic terror in every direction.

"Run for your livest" sereamed the conductor. "The ries also smash-up coming!"
A short, sharp seream from the whistle. The headlight gløzmed on the snow-covered track, and there was a mad rush of sliding whools, and the giganted engine roared like a demon, The great "50" slowly drew mear and stopped in the woods. Ruined by Too Much Money.

The career of a young man ruined by too much money ended by saileide at Kanina City recently. Inhoriting a large fortune from his father, who died twenty years ago, he found himself with nearly a million dollars by the rise in real-estate values. He evidently thing to this was more money than it could possibly be spont, but he did his best to spond it, and was mile to get rid of a great quantity. Money to him was a disaster and a cusse. A far more valuable inheritance would have been a level load and a willingness to go to work and be a man. As it was, gambling in lipor and kindred vices took possession of his life to the exclusion of all manhood, virue and rasefulness. Nothing in his career in the past few years been used in as much as the ending of it. The morar of it all is that a young man may have worse inck than to be pear and dendered by the control of the con

One of the Recognized Memeral Lowering.

A slok person should be bathed every day, unless for some special reason the doctor forbids it. The akin can not properly perform its function of enrying off the waste matter from the body muless its pores are kept open. In fever, spongling with cold water is one of the recognized means of lowering the temperature. It is, therefore, important to know how to give a bath to a porson in bod as easily, speedily, and effectually as possible. Before beginning, every thing that will be required should be placed at the side of the bed. Two blankets are needed, two towels a basin of water (if the bath is to be a warm one a pitcher of hot water to replenish the baship, and a sponge. If the bath is given every day, soap is unnecessary; when it is used a cloth should be substituted for the sponge, as soap spoils the latter. Only a few months ago the Courier Jeurnal, among other newspapers in the favored section of the State, raised a racket about the cost of conveying con-victs from Whitesburg to Frankfort. At the time we showed our distinguished sontemporary that it was figuring favor-ably for its own locality and dealing foully with the mountains. Naw comes the Auditor's Report, which shows that the Auditor's Report, which shows that Jefferson county, situated only fifty-six salles from Frankfort, took more from the State treasury to pay guard claims than was drawn for the same purpose for all of the nine counties composing the Nineteeuth judicial district The table will be interesting reading to all who have been in the hakit of reading in the Louisville papers of the "Lawlessness in the Mountaina." This table gives the amount paid out of the State treasury for guard claims in the Nineteenth dis-trict, and shows how the money was dis-vibuted: Nincteenth judicial district The table 1885-6. 1886-7.

A Young Wife Said to her Husband,

"My dear, I dreamed last night that you were an Angel. What is that a sign of?" A foul stomach," was his unpoctic answer.

People who have no such pleasant night visions, and awake feeling as though they had had no rese—nerves all unstrung, wondering "What on earth is the matter with me," would better take some simple treatment in TIME. Persons will neglect themselves, and put off treatment until their health is gone.

What would you think of the authorities of a great city with its miles of sewerage to take away the filthy accumulations of strotts and alleys allowing the sewerage to 'choke up" and spread contagion and poisonous gases from decaying matter to blight that city by disease? Yet your course is just as UNWISE. The human body is well provided with all that is necessary to carrying of the 'unclean,' and you allow it accumulate and decompose, bringing all manner of life to the flesh. An elid Chinese prover is, "keep your feet warm, your head cool and your bowels open." Make a memorandum of this and try it, and if you don't keep well there is no truth in the world.

Daysborough, January Suth.

Rev. W. Laey, the county evangelist of the Christin church of Wolfe county, closed a meeting on the 18th at the Red River church, where he had great success. The church received twelve by baptism, six reclaimed and two from othor churches. After closing the ten days' service at that place, he repaired to the Daysborough school house, where he was assisted by Rev. D. H. Fallen in a protraction of eight days with overwhelming results. The attendance increased day by day, and so did the conrecased day by day, and so did the conrecased day by day, and so did the conbedilseve that the "Gospel is the power of God nuto sulvation to every one that believeth," for we saw it fully demonstrated. Having had two meetings each day since the heginning they closed out on Friday night with seventeen additions by baptism and four by restoration—still,
leaving the interest that was being taken in the cause just at the zenith of its glovy. But as the Evangellat was very much exhausted he started for home to colony to hold a series of meetings at the Antioch church on Devila creek.

PURCHASING A HORSE.

Afternoon Stroll Through the Sale Stables at New Orleans.

As Afermon Steal Through the Sale Mahles at New Orleans.
At one time New Orleans was the principal mart of trade in the South and West, and was a first-class city for the livery business. The traffic in burses is still fairly good here, but the livery stables are doing nothing comparatively in the way of hiring either riding or buggy horses. They claim that this is due to the lack of drives in and about the city, owing, they say, to years of neglect of the public highways, which become, in many instances, quaganires after the least rain. The streets are all bills and hollows, rough thoroughfares, hard on the buggles and drivers—all from need of repairs. pairs.

sell from $25 to $75, according to size and appearance.

The harness, direft, saddle and road-ster herses come from Tennessee, Kentneky, Missearl, Illinols, Wisconsin and the other Western States. The dealers here, however, generally lay their supply of the different grades of animals in St. Lonis, Cincinnata, Lexington and Loubsville, where the dealers there colient their stocks from their respective sections from the breeders.

The brewers here buy the better class of draft-horses, the large, heavy ones, weighing from 1,200 to 1,500 pounds.

The fire companies also desire heavy animals, but active ones, with quick movements, whose build does not make thom too clumsy. The Southern Express Company is another institution that requires a good grade of business horse, causing from 1,000 to 1,200 pounds. The retail grocers use for their delivery wagons horses standing 15 and 16 hands and weighing from 900 to 1,200 pounds.

The saddle-horse is generally sold to gentlemen of means, whose exercises of a spirited and famey steed. Such a purchaser is usually particular in anking his selection, and is linke to sit down and disense with the seller the style, gait and merits of the prospective purchase.

He is invariably given a trial of the barse, which is first ridden up and heaves.

down and discuss with the soller the style, gait and merits of the prospective purchase.

He is invariably given a trial of the horse, which is first vidden up and down the street for his hospection, and then turned over to himself to ride to see that it suits him. The favorite colors are bay, chestnut, brown and black.

The roadster or bugge-horse is bought by the man who onlyes an afternoon spin along the boulevards and public driveways. Sach horses are valued according to their speed, style and gentleness in harmers. A good readster should be able to go, in four minutes, deedly, not afraid of steam cars, dimmines, or ongines, and should be theroughly broken.

B-fore the length in the completed one of the stable-days takes the horse out, which is well groomed, and should hold his head well up, presenting the required type of readster, and strots him along the block we as to show all his points to the purchaser, who by this means, is able to judge of the cut and ear-ralge of the animal.

A great many buyers depend altogether upon the world of the seller as to the age of the horse, but others
lucked on un examination of the meant, closely seaming the tools for the indication of the horse's age. After they have flukhed their inspection
they know as little as they dil before, because, if the denier is a trickster, he has already "bishoped" the animal's month. That is, having an aged troister, pacer, or saddle-horse for sale, he has taken the precaution to tile his teeth and just in the black spots by burning them with a red-hot iron. As a lorse grows older his teeth become long, the guns shrink away and the black dots dispepent. This being the case, the dealer can make his horse slow up almost any age that he wishes, even to putting in the notch
in the side jaw teeth, that indicates the period of the years old. So the purchaser, however fine an opialon he has of his own smarraness and knowledge, kin reality as sore in the hands

EFFECT OF CITY LIFE.

The General Physical Deteri

Town Populations.

It is generally recognized that the effect of town life upon the physique is not beneficial, and us the population of boroughs has now exceeded that of the country, the fact becomes one worthy of our attention. The great and rapid increase of large towns at of boronghs has now exceeded that of the country, the fact becomes one worthy of our attention. The great and rapid lacrease of large towns at the present that adds to the Importance of the snipet and deepens its gravity. Of old there were but few large towns in our modern souse of a "large" town; but Lugol, the great Fronch anthority on "serofula," noted how the population of Paris deterlorated, and how scrofulans were the third generations of parsons who came in from the conntry perfectly healthy. Other observers have noticed the bad offect of town life elsewhere. And the recent researches of Mr. James Cantile have demonstrated the rarity of a pare-lared Cockney of the fourth generation. Of ald the Bron lived in his castle, while the populace lived around in villages of limited size. For men of all conditions of life the one thing to be coveted abuve all others was physical prowess. For work, for war, for games, which were largely minute war, budily strength was essential. No courage, an skill, could effect all the open air. But civilization hrought about changes profonully in the open air. But civilization hrought about changes profonully in fancing the life of the individual. The development of commerce entailed the growth of towns, and then it was found that in the new stronger for existence the buttle work, rather than playdeal prowess. The tendency of town populations is to dwindle, and this dwindling is seen markedly in the sound of the war in the case, which form so large a portion of the dietury of their country condas. If they attempt these articles of food they give themselves the stomach-ache. Consequently they live on such food as a they can digest without suffering—bread, and fish, and ment; above all the same. What Glass Eyes Cost.

What Glass Eyes Coat.

The price of g laes syes la becoming cheaper on account of competition, and at the asanc time the quarity is better than hitherto. A comman glass eye may be had for $10, but they are not a good inhindion and do last long. A flext-chass eye custs $50, or even more. The least will not last over two yoars, because the secretions in the hollow of the eye roughen the glass by chemical action, and this roughness irritates the flest. If a person could buy glass eyes at wholesale, by the grows, he could get them for ahout $2 apiece. But he would have to look over a great unany before fluiding one to match his other eye in size, cooler, and expression. Glass eyes are all made abroad, principally in Germany and France, no factory having been started here, although there is a great demand for them in this country. A skillful oeulist can put a glass ere into the cavily so that very close observation is necessary to detect it. Not only are the size and oler of the natural eye contact felted, but even the general expression. The oculist has yet to discurer means of giving that sympathetic movement which distinguishes a pair of eyes. There is quite a large on musber of people with glass eyas, say 1 in 400.—/euclars/

WOMAN'S ECONOMY.

What Can He Accomplished by Proposition of the Can He Accomplished by Proposition of the Canada and the Canada and throw on with a spoon faster than a man can throw in with a shovel. There is, here and there, a woman to whom this sudage will apply, but so far as my experience goes it is the exception, and not the rule.

A lady friend, writing to a member of my family a few days ago, said: "I dind our murketing and groceries are costing too much. Have anade my my mind, with insband's consent, to look after those matters for a time, myself." Now, when a woman resolves upon a course like that, the man behind the counter will soon realize, if he has never learned it to force, that sistem ounces make one pound, thirty-two quarts one busined and one hundred cents one dollar, and she will usually adjust the matter with such tact and shrewdness as not to give offense, only the butcher, the baker, and the gaiter-shoomaker give a little more attention to the very common words known as, "look out."

The wateinfulness of the housewife of this class does not end here tack, ing this single matter of table supplies. There are pleese of steak, of pork, of chicken, bits of cake, bread and pie, that are carefully asseed far the next meal, the next day's much, or both. Or she will say. "Take upon your plate just shout the amount noneleil, that are carefully asseed far the next meal, the next day's much, or both. Or she will say. That is the word, and fits the said, and no one of God's dear, tolling, careword creatives comprehends it better and understands it more fully than the intelligent, eareful housewife. —Cor, Farm and Fireside.

COLUMNS OF FIRE.

A Strange Phenomenan Which is Annualizer Seen is Mitures and the Station.

'On duck there!'

The ball came from the foretoped a little fall-rigged ship of the idd-fash-loned Now Beddent type that was plowing along the waters of the Atlantic, hurling the bright, bloomed Now waves aloud of the broad bow in a lound not bolsterous manner.

'Aye, aye,' was the answer, followed by a graff "what's the majtre?' from the sloop mate.

'Light on the weather bow!' canb' from the lookout.

'We're a good two thousand miles from thad in that direction.' auttered the mate, as he swarp himself into the rigging.

But when he wiped away the apray that lasted his face there was the light, and one so strange and unfamiliar that he stood there for a yeral seconds, infletted by the waves, yet peering at the strange, visitor. Then winging around and dropping from the shroads to the quarter duck, he put up his big fands to form a transpet and reared: "Ready about?"

A moment later the ship was trom-hing in the wind, the blowks hammer?"

the shrounds to the quarter dock, he put up his big fanads to form a trainpet and vareed. "Beady about?"

A moment later the ship was trembling in the what, the blocks hammering the yards viciously, the coalage greating, the sails snapping like fire-arms, while the lunging and pitching covered the docks with a gleaning gridden spray. The roar and confusion brought the skipper on dock, and in explanation of his order the mate political at the strange light that was now astern. The mon, too, were looking at it, having made every thing saig, and of all the craw not one had ever seen any thing like it before.

When first seen it looked like a luminos long loading apon the surface, but it had gradually lengthened out, grown more attenuated, as it were, mutil now it seemed taller than the mainmast of the ship, of a yellowsh fint—a most striking object against the jat-black sky.

Some of the men looked at the strange form with grave apprehension. To them it hoded no good, perhaps harmy others were not so easily disturbed, but every one on board was at least astonished at the entrions apparition that every moment seemed to grow larger and taller.

"Keep her away a point," said the expend, can when you are not so easily disturbed, but every one on board was at least a stonished at the entrions apparition that every moment seemed to grow larger and taller.

"Keep her away and slightly increasal her speed, "Whatever it is," he continued, "it's coming after us. It looks to me like a waterspont, but I never away one that was on fire, and that one is if any thing ever was."

The centions object was rapidly gaining on them, and now presented an appalling appearance—a huge column of descrite intich, muldreds of feet high.

Hippopotamus Hunting

Hippopotamus Hunting.

In hunting the hippopotamus the Bayeye, or African sawage, uses a sort of harpeon, the shift if while his twelve feet long. At the end a sucket is made, and into this is lineareted a combination of spear and fish hook as sharp as a pin. To the shank of this harpeon a hank of cord is fastened, the other end of which is tied to the wooden bandle. Secured to this is the long harpeon line, terminating with a float, so that, if the wounded and the same of the wooden harpeon line, terminating with a float, so that, if the wounded and easily killed. If a came or foot were need in hunting them, there is always danger of the hippopotami "chewing" them up and of being alarmed by the sound of the juddles; so the natives employ rafts that are permitted to float over the water, and approach the animals without awakening their suspicion.—Golden Dags.
